SOCIAL PROGRAMME

GUIDED TOUR TO POBLET MONASTERY

“An impressive architectural complex and one of the largest monasteries in Europe. Declared World Heritage, it is home to a large monastic community that maintains the spirituality of the place.”

The Monastery of Poblet is located within the region of the Conca de Barbera, between the towns of Vimbodí and Espluga of Francolí. Sheltered by the slopes of the mountains of Prades, in a beautiful setting, where abundant springs flow and where the immense forest of Poblet with its lush and varied vegetation used to be one of the many possessions of the monastery. Since 1984 this forest is a Natural Area of National Interest. The name derives from the Latin for poplar (Populetum). Poblet and its impressive architectural monuments can be counted among the most important monasteries in Europe. In addition to the magnificent church, prominent example of Cistercian art, preserved almost all the buildings that were built according to the needs of a community filled with vitality and expansion and protection of the sovereigns of the confederation Catalan-Aragonese: especially since Pere III el Cerimoniós (1336-1387) made the monastery a place for the royal dynasty to be interred.

It is the biggest monastery on the Cistercian route and the only one of the two monasteries that has a community of monks. In 1991 it was declared a World Heritage site by UNESCO.

WINE MUSEUM WITH TASTING

The cooperative winery of L'Espluga de Francolí was designed by Lluís Domènech i Montaner and built in 1913 by his son, Pere Domènech i Roure, also an architect.

The Catalan writer Àngel Guimerà called it "The Cathedral of Wine", a name that was later applied to other Modernist cooperative wineries in Catalonia. It now houses a wine museum that is divided into three levels. In the cellar you can see the history, cultivation methods and traditional winemaking techniques; the second level explains modern winemaking and the third level tells you about the building's Modernist architecture.

The tour includes three audiovisuals. The museum shop sells wine, cava, olive oil and nuts.

CULTURAL HERITAGE WALKING TOUR AT MONTBLANC

Montblanc is a town in the centre of Catalonia and near such interesting places as the Mediterranean coast and The Prades Mountains.

Medieval Montblanc is history and legends, it is monuments and nature, it is feast and tradition, it is craftsmanship and gastronomy, it is quality and desire to serve.

Any period of the year is a good time to walk through the streets and squares which have a medieval air, visit churches and palaces, enjoy the nature around, live the traditions and celebrations intensely. The porches of Montblanc walled ensemble are always open, inviting the visitor to let himself go by the history and the legends which the alive stones keep.
